VOL. XXVI.—NO. 39 MIDDLETOWN, DELAWARE, S

LIGHT AFTER DARKNESS

THE ELECTRIC LIGHTS THAT MIDDLETOWN HAS SIGHED FOR HERE AT LAST.

THE ENGINE CHRISTENED

By One Of Our Fair Daughters, and "Sallie" Is Her Name—Throngs Crowd the Electric Light Station When Miss Bessie Reynolds Turned the Switch.

SEEING is believing! and there is no further need of proof that Middletown has electric lights.

When the contractor assured us that the TRANSCRIPT this week should be read by electric light we could hardly accept the truth. It seemed too good to be true.

But his statements have already been veryfied and the joyous cry of "Lights!" "Lights!" filled the air last night as the bright dazzling efulgence dispelled the darkness that had been our bete noir these many months.

The story of the past week is one of intensest interest to every man, woman and child of our town.

The electric light station has been the scene of great activity, and night and day the men have worked, that in good time we might have light and have it abundantly.

The engine, that magnificant piece of machinery, was started on Thursday. Commissioner Comegys' hand on the throttle started its pulses, and the lifeth at stirred within it may reach every home in town.

The christening was one of the most interesting feature of last nights' performance S. M. Reynolds and J. W. Jolls are the only commissioners who are blessed with a daughter each, and it according to a pre-arranged plan that Miss Bessie Reynolds in the presence of an eager, anxious company, broke the traditional bottle of wine and in a clear tone said "I christen thee Sallie Woodbury Jolls," and then turned the switch that sent the light throughout the town. The crowds cheered and shouted for joy and general rejoicing prevailed.

The engine is one 100 horse, compound made by the Stearns manufacturing Company, of Erie, Pa., whose shops are among the most complete engine shops in the whole country, and whose reputation for building fine engines is of the very highest This type of engine known as compound utilizes steam twice, thereby saving 25 per cent. in the coal consumption. The engine rests on a firm foundation, which extends 7 feet in the ground, and is capped by a solid piece of granite seven feet by three by six inches, which makes a neat appearance and rounds off the foundation nicely.

The boiler is an 80 horse power, horizontal return tubular boiler, set in solid masonary and connected up to the new stack which is 80 feet high, and can be seen for miles distant.

The whole building is in exact accordance with good practice and has followed, to the letter, the rules of the Board of Fire Under writers. By this means Middletown will secure a very low rate of insvrance on the building. The belts are of the very finest grade of the short lap leather belting and were made in Hartford, Conn.

The dynamos consist of two 600 light Edison Standard machine and are in perfect condition, and the style of finish shows that middletown can depend on them for a satisfactory and unrestricted light. The switch-board consists of heavy oak slats to which the switches, volt meters, ampere meters and switches are attached. The polished copper rods coveying the current from the dynamos to the wires of the town make a neat and handsome appearance. The switches are so arranged that either dynamo can be used separately, and either street lights or house lights turned on. The whole plant is a model of neat, compact and useful arrangement.

The Commission and the Supervising Engineer, George W. Comly, of Wilmington, are to be congratulated on their thorough and substantial work in the lighting plant, for as was proved last night. Middletown has an electric light plant that will rival the best.

Honor to whom honor is due, and now hats off to the Light Commission hats off to the contractors the McKay, Howard Engineering Co., of Baltimore, who have enstalled the complete eletrical portion of the plant, and hats off to Mr. Warren. who put in the boiler, and hats off to everybody who had a part in the completion of this perfect piece of work.

Potatoes That Weigh a Pound.

Those are the kind that Mr. William Taylor raises at "Sunny Lawn." His success in agricultural experiments will doubtless make him a record. A member of the TRANSCRIPT staff is the recipient of a basket of beautiful "Murphies" of the Early Rose variety, grown on his farm. What process was used to produce such results we have not learned, but we do know that for fine quality and uniform size they cannot be beat. Potatoes that weigh a pound a piece are not grown every where. But then Mr. Taylor always does things a little bigger than other people.

An Evening Party.

Miss Bessie Reynold's gave an impromptu dance last evening in honor of Miss Tatem, of Tallahassee, Fla., who is a guest of Miss Allie McKee. Amoeg those present besides the guest of honor were Miss Parvis, Misses Mary Cochran, Edith Reynolds, Martha Heaton. Dr. J. C. Stites, Will Lockwood' Will Metten, J. C. Kelley, Ed. Vanghan and Herman Cochran.

October Weddings.

Cards are out announcing the marriage of Lee Olan Waller and Miss Maria Heston Farrell, daughter of Edward Farrell, at St. Peter's P. E. Church, Smyrna, on Tuesday evening, October 10.

WINTER IS COMING.

The Coal Carts are Busy and the Stove Men in Demand.

Everybody who can is laying in their winter supply of fuel, and the coal merchants are doing a brisk business. The tons of "dusky diamonds" that are being stored in various cellars, are a guarantee for comfort next winter, provided of course, the cellar heater works well.

The stove men are also busy, and the man with a stove pipe under his arm and a sooty streak across his nose can be seen at almost any hour rushing from house to house. The lot of the "heater man" is surely a hard one, for on all sides he is beset with the same cry "when will you have my stove or my heater fixed."

There is no use talking, it is not in human nature to have a furnace repaired in midsummer, and if you did want it, done likely the stove man would'nt care about the job.

JARRELL—SHORT.

Quietly Married at the Home of the Bride.

James Jarrell, of near Middletown, and Miss Clara Short, were married on Wednesday evening at the residence of the bride's parents near Leipsic. Rev. Mr. Mobray performed the ceremony in the presence of only a few friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Jarrell have taken up their abode on the farm near Smith's Mill where Mr. Jarrell has resided for a number of years. We wish the newly wedded couple a long life of conjugal happiness.

The Fruit of the Vine.

Mr. W. H. Moore is the champion grape grower of Middletown. He uses a preparation for spraying his vines, and has grapes when other people have none. And such grapes! Fine large bunches in great profusion and of superior flavor! His reputation as a vine dresser is well established, and his grapes have been known for years. The TRANSCRIPT has tested their quality, and we know whereof we speak.

A Young Man

who desires to be well dressed, will make his selection from Reynolds & Cos. new Fall and Winter Neckwear. Forty dozens of them. A hundred different colorings, 50c. 25c.

CHURCH NOTES.

What the Various Churches are Doing at Home and Abroad.

Subject of discourse Sunday night, Methodist Church. "How can we save our boys and girls?"

The usual Friday afternoon services at St. Anne's P. E. Church will be resumed next Friday at 3 o'clock.

A special collection will be taken in Forest Presbuterian Church to-morrow for the Board of Synodical Sustaintation.

The Rev. F. C. MacSorley, pastor of Chambride M. E. Church, has been sent to the World's Fair by his congregation.

Next Sunday, to-morrow, there will be special services at the Methodist Church, a number of probationers will be received into full membership and others received by letters.

The gift of $6000 by Joseph Pyle to Silverbrook Methodist Episcopal Church, Wilmington, at the dedication on Sunday evening, makes a total gift of $12,000 to the church building fund. This is the largest gift for a similar purpose since the building of Grace Church.

The Presbyterian Sunday school is soon to have a new library. A collection was taken last Sunday morning, which increased the fund to $65, and as soon as a selection of books is agreed upon there will be a large addition to the library, which will be very welcome news to the members of the school.

Revival services at Johnstown have beed held in the new church dedicated two weeks ago. The meetings have been attended with good results and many have been brought into the church during the extra services. Rev. D. H. Corkran and his estimable wife have labored untireingly to promote every interest of the church.

The sermon on "The Perils in the Path of the Young," by Rev. N. M. Browne was listened to by a large congregation at the M. E. Church on Sunday evening. The broad and comprehensive views of life taken by the pastor appealed to the sense as well as the heart of his hearers, and his words of warning were timely given.

Big Day at Barrett's Chapel.

An all-day meeting will be held at old Barrett's Chapel to-morrow. The Rev. R. Irving Watkins, of Odessa, will preach in the morning and the Rev. H. S Thompson in the afternoon, and there will be appropriate exercises in the evening. If to-morrow is stormy the services will be held the following Sunday.

Deaconesses In Wilmington.

A special meeting of the Board appointed by the Wilmington Conference at its last session on the Deaconess work of the Conference was held last Tuesday at Grace Church. After a free interchange of views between the Board and the representative of the Woman's Home Missionary Society, it was arranged for the employment of one or more Deaconess at once. Good results must attend this special line of christian effort to which the Methodist Church is giving special attention.

Asbury's New Pastor.

Rev. H. S. Dulaney, pastor of Kingswood Church, has been invited by the Official Board of Asbury Church, Wilmington, to become the pastor of that church at the next session of the Conference. Mr. Dulaney is a native of Wicomico County, Md., and before entering the ministry was carrying on a successful business with his father at Fruitland, Md. As a layman he was an earnest and successful church worker in the local society where he held his membership, and in the wider field which the ministry opened to him, he has shown himself to be a workman that needeth not be ashamed.

COLLORED METHODIST.

Annual meeting of Wilmington District in the Hamtown M. E. Chuch.

The annual meeting of the preachers of the Wilmington district of Delaware A. M. E. Conference will be held in Middletown, beginning Wednesday Oct. 4th and continuing three days. Following is the programme:

Evening—Devotions, the Rev. J. W. W. Coxe; doctrinal sermon, the Rev. C. N. Grandison.

The World's Champion In Wilmington.

The champion pugilist of the world, James J. Corbett, who is now matched to meet Charles Mitchell next December, will appear at the Grand Opera House on Wednesday evening next in "The Bottom of the Sea." In the second act he will spar four rounds with John Donaldson. This will be Corbett's first appearance since he went into training and also his first time in Wilmington. He will also give an exhibition of punching the bag.

THE WHITE RIBBONERS

THE DELAWARE W. C. T. U. CONVENED AT DOVER.

A DEMOREST MEDAL CONTEST

With Six Participants—Miss Hellis' Address—"The Prohibition Party the Only Temperance Party." Maryland Unions Meet at Annapolis.

ROVERS of cold water were numerous in Dover this week. The fourteenth annual convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Delaware brought together a large number of white ribboners, who assembled in Wesley M. E. Church, of that city.

Mrs. R H. Matlack, state superintendent of evangelistic work conducted the opening exercises.

In her annual address the President, Miss Margaret S. Hellis, of Wilmington, gave quite a lengthy resume of the work already done along temperance lines naming specially the restriction of the sale of cigarettes, the establishing of a state industrial schoo1 for girls, scientific temperance instruction in schools, and the protection of women by securing police matrons in Wilmington.

The action of the last legislature in amending the liquor law, by which intoxicants are sold to men, women and children by pail or pitcher ("rushing growler" as it is commonly known,) was greatly deplored. An earnest agitation was recommended to secure a law at the next session of the legislature by which intoxicants cannot be sold in such manner within a certain distance of churches or schoolhouses.

Miss Hilles also pledged the W. C. T. U. to the Prohibition party, closing her remarks thus:

"We fail to recognize either of the old parties, Democratic or Republican, as temperance parties. Both are liquor parties and the only political temperance party is the Prohibition party."

The feature of the evening was the Demorest Medal contest.

The following were the contestants and their subjects: Andrew Wood, "Prosperity Prophesied;" Miss Nellie Packard, "The Two Fires;" Irving Wickes, "Moral Suasion or Prohibition;" Miss Edith Hutton, "Not Dead Nor Dying;" Miss Helen Slaughter, "Rum-selling Our Country's Scourge and Ruin;" Miss Bessie Eager, "World on Fire." The contestants acquitted themselves with credit.

The judges were Presiding Elder R. H. Adams, Mrs. Cranston and Mrs. Green. Miss Helen Slaughter was awarded the gold medal.

The music was very fine. Choruses by the boy choir being a special attraction Mrs. Wolcott and Mr. Smithers also sang a duet.

Mrs. J. K. Barney, of Providence, R. I., made the address on Thursday evening. Mrs. Barney is not a stranger in Delaware, having made several tours through the state, and always finds a ready hearing.

Friday evening was devoted to the interests of the "Y's." Miss Bessie Addison Mills is superintendent of this department, and the exercises on this occasion were a credit to her leadership.

The sessions both day and night were well attended by both delegates and friends and while the numbers were not so great as were found at these conventions in former years, the old-time enthusiasm was not wanting.

BRIEFS.

—The circus is here.

A full stock of Ladies and Misses Coat and Wraps in the newest styles at A. S. Adams.

Jack Frost has made his first appearance this week.

—The school boys' delight; the Chinquapins are ripe.

—The golden rod is blooming and the purple astors too.

All the latest styles in fall millinery in velvets and felts at A. S. Adams.

—Oysters are plentiful in the local market, and lovers of the bivalve are testing their qualities.

I have just laid in a new stock of dry goods which you will do well to examine before purchasing elsewhere. A. S. Adams.

WANTED.—Competent White Woman for general work in family of three. Liberal wages. Address Box 67, Middletown, Del.

The Maryland Unions.

The W. C. T. U., of Maryland, held their annual meeting at Annapolis, simultaneously with the Delaware Unions. There was a large attendance, and much interest taken. Mrs. Margaret A. Lake, who has been corresponding secretary for a number of years, says in her report, that greater interest has been shown by the young people in the cause than ever before. Mrs. Baldwin, the President, in her annual address was frequently applauded. She said among other good things that "Prohition is a household work." Six young ladies acted as ushers of the convention.

Oil Shipments at Marcus Hook.

From September 1 until September 12 125,689 barrels of petroleum were shipped from the Marcus Hook Oil Works, as follows: British steamships Wild Flower, 28,415; Kasbek, 28,807; Allegheny, 28,908; Lucerna, 35,560; Italian bark Innocenta, 4290.

Weddings to Be.

Cards are out for the wedding of Mr, David Hutchinson, of Townsend, and Miss Sallie Carpenter, sister of Rev. F. F. Carpenter. The ceremony to be performed at the home of the bride's parents in Wilmington October 11.

THE HOBOKEN CHURCH.

That Failed to Secure Rev. W. W. W. Wilson, Still not Satisfied.

Troubles with pastors or among members of congregations are disturbing several charches of the Newark, N. J. Conference. Rev. James W. Marshall, pastor of the Hoboken M. E. Church resigned his charge on Monday and has left the place.

Mr. Marshall simply notified the trustees that in consequence of the absence of harmony since his appointment he would ask to be transferred to another charge when the Newark conference meets next April. Members of the congregation wanted the Rev. W. W. W. Wilson, of the Wilmington, Del., conference, as their pastor, but but the Newark conference refused to admit him. Mr. Marshall was assigned to the church, and being unable to restore harmony concluded to retire. He has notified the official board of the church of his decision now to afford them ample time in which to look about for another pastor.

AN EPISCOPAL SISTERHOOD.

The St. Margaret's Community Represented In Wilmington.

Wilmingtonians have observed during the past few days a strange garb in the streets. It is of two sisters whom Bishop Coleman has secured for church work of various kinds. They belong to the well-known and much esteemed sisterhood of St. Margaret, whose chief establishment in this country is at Boston. They have branches in quite a number of places throughout America and England.

It is not known as yet to what particular work they will devote themselves, that being determined by Bishop Coleman. They have been assigned to the house for sometime belonging to the diocese, 1009 Tatnall street, which they will at once make their headquarters and which is admirably adapted for their purposes. Their names are Sister Vera and Sister Mary Dorotha.

40 Years Superintendent.

The members of Milington Methodist Sunday school, on Sunday week presented their superintendent, Thomas Mallalieu, Esq., with a beautiful hymnal in commemoration of the 40th, anniversary of his superintendency of the school and the 79th of his age. The presentation was made by the Rev. George W. Burke, pastor of the church, in a beautiful and happy strain. This school is in a flourishing condition, and its verable superintendent can proudly boast of being the oldest in consecutive years of service, probably, of any in the State.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

A Team Backed Into the Canal at St. Georges.

Theodore Jones, of Wrangle Hill, was nearly drowned in the Delaware and Chesapeake canal at St. Georges Thursday. He had just driven across the drawbridge and was on the approach when the draw opened to let through a tow.

The tow-line, when pulled tight by the mules, flew up in Jones' horse's face frightening it so badly that it backed into the canal. Jones and the wagon went with it. The horse was drowned and Jones had a close call.

Jr. O. U. A. M.

A Council to be Formed at Townsend Next Week.

The Middletown Council of Junior Order United American Mechanics, will go to Townsend one evening next week, probably Thursday, to institute a council at that place. Twenty-two names have already been guaranteed, and others will soon follow, for the "Juniors" are always popular.

Our little sister town will add another attraction to her list when she has a flourishing council of this patriotic order in her midst.

The Coroner for '94.

To the voters of New Castle County—

GENTLEMEN: Please do not forget that I am still on deck. The undersigned will again be a candidate for coroner of New Castle county at the nomination in 2893. Thankful for all past favor, I kindly ask of you your influence and your votes once more. Truly yours,

GEORGE W. JACKSON.

An Autumn Wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Todd, of Dover, have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Sara Belle Todd to the Rev. Theodore G. Eiswald, pastor of the M. E. Church. in the town of Christiana. The ceremony will be performed in the Wesley M. E Church, in that town, Wednesday afternoon, October 4th, at 3 o'clock.

S. G. Stinson, Smyrna, building, $1,742.

THE FALL OF THE YEAR.

A Busy Season for Everybody Especially the Farmer.

September's golden month has fled. Autumnal breezes stir the air, and every body is busy with their fall work.

The merchants are laying in their new stock and displaying their goods in attractive styles. The artisans are busy with finishing all incomplete jobs; the housekeepers, after having used up all the jars, sugar and fruit that they could manage to get, are now seeking other "kingdoms to conquor," and when their plants are all potted for the window garden, they will enter upon the fall seige of house cleaning. Everybody is busy, but the farmer is busiest of all. The recent rains have put him in better heart, and he is working away from early morn till night fall drilling wheat and cutting off corn.

The country is beautiful in nature's maturity. The rows upon rows of corn in shock, the broad acres of newly prepared soil for seed sowing, the orchards and vineyards yielding up their harvest of fruits make a constantly varying picture, that cannot fail to please the eye of every lover of the beautiful.

The marvel is how nature's face can look so fair when wheat is at such a price, and the interest on the mortgage due and unpaid, and the farmer in daily dread of foreclosure.

Corn cutting this fall has been an unusually difficult task, much of it was flat to the ground, and very tangled. Farm labor is scarce too, in spite of the cry of the unemployed thousands, a goodly portion of whom are to be seen on our highways seeking a place of refuge ere the winter winds whistle. The summer "peach plucks" are many of them, in a sad plight for cold weather, and since the frost is felt in the air his ills are on the increase.

THE CANNING INDUSTRY.

Tomato Canneries Still in Operation. Another Week Will end the Season.

The Peninsula canneries are still busy canning the tomato crop. Tomatoes are scarce and the canners are in some places paying as high as $8 per ton for that vegetable. This is considered a high price and the farmers are willing to take that much for them.

The canneries are at work on full time and are giving employment to hundreds of people. Complaint is made by some, however, of the fact that some of them employ foreigh labor. These foreign laborers live in barracks and cook their own food, in many cases having their stoves in the open air and in other cases cooking over log fires. In the Maryland canneries many of the laborers are secured from Baltimore and in some cases they are a very tough lot of people.

A noticeable fact about the canneries is the number of children employed. Some of them are not over 8 or 9 years old, but they do their work well. It appears that people in the lower part of the Peninsula are determined to keep the entire family at work while the canning season lasts and to make as much money as they can while the opportunity offers itself. It is estimated that the tomato season will be over within the next two weeks. Then most of the canneries will be closed until next summer.

The Smyrna Hosiery.

While the larger number of hosiery mills shut down throughout the country when the panic came on some weeks ago it is a gratifying fact that Bitzer & Luesher of our town have kept right on through it and not until a week or so ago did they curtail time. Orders are usually dull at this time of the year (between seasons) and they are now stopping at 4.30 o'clock in the afternoon. We hope in a few weeks they will have to, as was the case last winter, work overtime.—Smyrna Times.

Rev. F. F. Carpenter organized a class for Bible study on Thursday evening. The class will meet once in two weeks.

Mrs. Sallie R. Taylor and Mrs. Kate Atwell left on Wednesday for Dover. They represented this Union at the W. C. T. U. Convention which was held there this week.

Rev. Herman Roe preached on Sunday morning for our pastor who was called upon to conduct the funeral service of Thomas Skeggs, Sr. Mr. Skeggs was well advanced in years. He died at the home of his grandson Frank Morris on Thursday.

A party of eleven left here on Saturday for the World's Fair. They were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Richard Hodgson, Mr. and Mrs. Stradley, Mr. and Mrs. Phillips, Mr. Andrew Reynolds and wife, Miss Addie Reynolds, Miss Rosa Reynolds and Master Levi Maloney. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Graves, of Greenwood.

PORT PENN.

Rev. Jacob Weidman will return to his charge on the 30th.

The illness of so many casts a gloom over our small community.

Harry Hall is in town visiting relatives.

The weather is so cool that fires and blankets feel comfortable, but the predicted frost has not yet appeared.

Miss Fanny Dilworth, and little Fanny Bendler, are both ill with Typhoid fever. Fred Bendler is somewhat better.

The Rev. Mr. Given, the Methodist minister, is now on his feet again and can soon resume his duties. Services last Sunday were conducted in the village altogether by laymen.

It is very quiet here now since tourists no longer drive through the streets. The sweet strains of "After the Ball" are seldom heard save from an occasional musically inclined urchin and native.

Mrs. Webb will offer at public sale her household goods together with the tools, machines and stock of the blacksmith and wheelwright shop of her late husband on Thursday October 5th.

CHESAPEAKE CITY.

Miss Eddie Ferguson, of Cecilton, is visiting her sister, Mrs. B. Bouchelle.

Miss Hattie Morgan entered Lutherville Seminary as a student on Friday of last week.

Miss Nellie Boulden was the guest of Miss Bessie Wooters, at Town Point on Sunday.

Miss Rena Beiswanger has returned from a very pleasant visit among friends in Baltimore.

Mrs. S. E. Deshane and Miss Sallie Bouchelle are the guests of relatives in Wilmington.

Mrs. Oakley Barwick and daughters Bessie and Mary, are the guests of relatives in Washington.

Mrs. Harry Bouchelle and daughters, Ida and Mamie are the guests of her sister, Mrs. J. McCoy, near Cecilton.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Bouchelle, spent several days of this week in visiting Philadelphia, Camden and other places.

Miss Florence Egee returned to her home in Wilmington on Saturday, after having spent several months in town. She expects to visit Chicago and the World's Fair in October.

PENINSULA NEWS.

The third annual convention of the Kent County Sunday School Association met in Armory M. E. Church, at Dover, this week

Western Maryland College in Westminster opened its fall term last week with over two hundred students enrolled during the first three days.

The basket factories of the peninsula have been hard pressed with work this season having turned out over 8,000,000 baskets which means the disbursement of nearly $68,000 for labor alone.

Large quantities of hay is being brought to Chestertown from Baltimore and Cecil and sold here by the ton at $20, and at about $25 per ton in smaller quantities. This is pretty stiff for provender.

The new nine-inch drive well at the Dover water works has reached a depth of 180 feet. It is thought that this depth will be sufficient to supply the extra demand of water. It will be attached this week and tested.

Bishop Coleman and the standing committee have refused to grant the request of seceders from Christ Church to form a new parish in Dover. They decided that sufficient grounds had not been given to justify granting the petition.

Queen Anne's County Republicans hav nominated the following ticket: Clerk of the Circuit Court; Joseph Mallalieu; Senator, James Hynson; House of Delegates, E. Hemmill Wright, W. L. Ford and W. G. Chance; County Commissioner, Charles F. Rich; Sheriff, J. E. Walters, Jr.

During the storm in Wyoming and Camden on Monday evening, hail stones, some of them as large as hen eggs, covered the ground. The skylights in Ellison's factory were broken and hundreds of window panes were broken. Mrs. Conner was driving to her home in a carriage during the storm, and the hailstones fell with such ferce that they cut through the top of the carriage.

H. L. Clayton, M. D.

Dr. Harry Clayton who has been practicing medicine in Philadelphia, has returned to middletown, and for the present has his office at his home on Cass street. He already has had a number of surgical cases and we doubt not will have a large share of patronage from this community where he has no mean reputation as a physician and surgeon.

Thirty-Seven Years a Benedict.

Post Master A. G. Cox and wife entered upon their 38th year of married life on Tuesday, September 26. We hope good health through many years more will be the portion of this devoted couple, and that they may pass the "golden era" in happy wedlock.

...ner, for which, ... good authority, ... to Mr. Cleveland's ... the Mission to Italy; ... Alen is accredited with ...al months ago that he had ... foreign portfolio, "like a ... and expected the prompt ...ry of the goods.

...his appointment of Van Alen seems ...o be about the worst that Mr. Cleveland has ever made, even after laying aside the charges that Van Alen had a promise of the place in exchange for money. If the statement be true that a person supposed to be close to Mr. Cleveland did promise that Van Alen should go to Rome as the representative of this country because a longing for the "social distinction" that such positions are supposed to bring had caused Van Alen to give a little of the money he is overburdened with, "for the good of the cause," and the one close to Mr. Cleveland did urge the appointment of Van Alen on account of Van Alen's campaign contribution, the whole transaction is nothing less than a corrupt bargain and sale of public office, and deserves the condemnation of every honest American.

If American Ambassadorships are to be sold for cash, it would be well to ask competition, and knock them down to the highest bidder, for the $50,000 said to have been paid by Van Alen for his Italian portfolio seems a most ridiculously small sum for the place when so many natural born fools are begging for a chance to buy what they are pleased to call "social distinction," with money.

Men of the Van Alen stripe represent nothing that is American. They are simply specimens of an effete civilization, which might well cause every follower of Darwin, when he sees one of them, to mentally apologize for the monkey.

If such a fellow as this J. J. Van Alen had come to Andrew Jackson asking for a foreign Mission, Andrew would have kicked him down stairs and then fumigated the apartment.

It is charitable to believe that, in this Van Alen matter, President Cleveland has been deceived by those who are called his friends.

CZAR GRISP has seen Czar Reed and gone him one better.

HEROD has been out-Heroded, and Herod has witnessed the transaction." Czar Reed has yielded the sceptre of autocratic rule to Czar Crisp, and the Democratic papers all over the country are compelled to eat the fiery words of condemnation with which they condemned Reed in the 51st Congress. Oh, what a difference it makes whose cow is being gored.

WE cannot hope for our old time prosperity to return to our commercial and industrial institutions until those who have the administration of affairs prove themselves wise, capable and willing to lead the people in the right way. The present indications are that it will be a long time before the business of the country will run again in its old channels for the financial panic is not yet ended.

EVIDENTLY the negro Democrats will receive great consideration from the present Administration. Of course Delaware has had her quota, and now the President has seen fit to appoint a colored man consul to Calais, France, and one as Minister to Bolivia, and a colored man still holds the position of Recorder in the District of Columbia. While the New York Sun's cry "no negro domination" may prevail, yet evidently it is the time of negro recognition.

TRAIN robberies and railroad accidents are getting to be of such frequent occurrence that "riding on the rail" is rather hazardous. But the recent capture of the Michigan bandits

...ndler has introduced a ...hat may stir up the ad... ...tion considerably, to say ...ing of adding to the hard feelings already existing in both factions of the New York Democracy. The resolution calls upon the Secretary of the Treasury for his authority to appoint the Fairchild commission now engaged in examining the appraisor's office of the port of New York; what has been done and what it is intended to do; how much money has been paid out, and what agreed to be paid, together with all correspondence on the subject or relating thereto. When the resolution is called up it is not probable that either Senator Hill or Murphy will attempt to defend Secretary Carlisle. It is suspected that some of the correspondence will be especially interest to the New York Senators.

...ve urged noth... ...to his credit than the possession of millions of dollars. It is very hard to believe that President Cleveland will be a party to such a bargain and his denial that he knew anything of Van Alen's contribution of $50,000 to the Democratic National Campaign fund serves, in some degree, to relieve him from any bargain in the matter. Ye shades of Jefferson contemplate! A man whose only qualification is his posesion of dollars to receive the appointment of Minister to Italy to represent the great American Republic, and receiving the appointment on the ground of extensive wealth. Is this Democratic simplicity? Query: If $50,000 buys the Italian Mission, what would be the price of the English Mission.

"AMERICA is no place for gentlemen and ladies." So says Van Alen. Whatever America may, or may not be, very sure it is, that it is no place for the dear lover of flunkyism. Flunkydum is the place for Van Alen and we have no objections to his going there to remain for the balance of his natural life. But for him to go with the credentials of an Ambassador from our government is a matter to which we may not become so easily reconciled. Hard trials indeed, have come to the poor Mugwump, when he sees this Thing, which might be properly designated as "The What Is Is," appointed to a foreign mission by the party of Jeffersonian simplicity, and "still harden trials for them too," when it turns out that this cross between a dude and a baboon deliberately bought his preferment at the price of fifty thousand dollars, every dollar of which was judiciously used in impressing the minds of the dear people that Jefferson's ghost was embodied in Grover, and if they would only vote for him justice and righteousness would come to reign for a thousand years. But the Mugwump may take some comfort in the fact that Grover pays his debt like a man, notwithstanding that the World and Sun insist on repudiation.

FARMING WITH BRAINS.

Those farmers who always buy or sell things just at the right time are called lucky, but their luck is the result of a profitable use of brains. The great artist who mixed his paints "with brains, sir," is a safe guide for every other man who would succeed in business, and the farmers of to-day need to put a good deal of intelligent thought into their farming if they are ever to "get out of the bushes.' It is never wise or safe to follow the crowds in agriculture, for the tendency is either to over do a crop, or not to do it at all. The man with brains watches the indication and comes in between the extremes.

The hay crop this year is less than the average, the foreign demand is above the average, consequently hay must bring big prices before spring. On account of the droughts thousands of farmers must feed their stock from August until next year's pasture comes; that man is wise who takes care of every stalk of fodder and lets nothing be wasted that can be used for provender. Next spring he may still have some hay on hand that will bring him more than satisfactory prices.

The usual acreage will not be put in wheat this fall. The prvailing low prices will deter many, and the dry weather has prevented many more from preparing the soil. Of course next year's prices can only be guessed at, but with the present indications the long-headed farmer, if he can manage to get his phosphate, will put in his usual area in wheat.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

TO THE WORLD'S EAIR VIA P. R. R.

A Further Reduction In Fare For the Coach Excursions.

The rapidly approaching termination of the Columbian Exposition and the enormous travel now directing itself to Chicago prompt the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to still further reduce its round-trip rate on the popular World't Fair Coach Excursions. The rate from Philadelphia will be $17; Lancaster $16.85; Harrisburg, $15.75; Altoona, $14.50; and a proportionate reduction from other points along the main line and branches. These rates apply only to special trains leaving on September 28th, October 2nd and an addtiional one just arranged for October 6th. The tickets will, as before be good for return passage within ten days on trains leaving Chicago at 3.15 and 11.30 P. M.

The rate has now reached the lowest possible point, and is within the means of almost every one, which end the railroad company has long been endeavoring to attain. Early application for tickets is urged, in view of the increased demand which will undoubtly follow this liberal announcement.

The service for travel will be maintained at the same standard for which the Pennsylvania Railroad Company is justly world-wide famous.

TO THE WORLD'S FAIR VIA B. & O.

Going via Washington and Returning via Niagara Falls.

The Baltimore and Ohio railroad has placed on sale at its offices throughout the East, excursion tickets to Chicago, good going via Washington and returning via Niagara Falls, with the privilege of stop over at each point. Philadelphia. (Offices Strictly Private) is the only one able to cure the unfortunate suffering from Blood Poison, Special Diseases, Stricture, Debility, decay, Impotency, etc., primary or secondary, (no matter what others write, plat, say, advertise or guarantee), and all the trains of evils, etc., by combined Allopathic, Homeopathic, and Eclectic systems of medicine. Relief at once. Fresh cases cured in 4 to 10 days. Send five two-cent stamps for book "Truth," something that will astonish you, and a true friend to suffering humanity and those contemplating marriage. Hours 9 to 3; evenings, 6 to 8; Sundays, 9 to 12 M. Beware of quacks, their book literature and fraudulent advertisements.

EXPERIENCE CREATES WISDOM.

MR. K. P. HELSENBURGS under oath says: It is interesting to note the constant increase in the ranks of quacks and doctors who claim to cure anything from a cold to a cancer. Some of them make believe you will have to see them sooner or later; others, that they have power equal to their Creator. The home cure scheme, cheap treatment, free consultation, guarantee, and money-refunding tricks are so well known that it is not necessary to refer to them any further. As suited their fancy, and to accomplish their greedy desires, one would say that I had Catarrh, and a tendency to Consumption; another, that I had Syphilis or Blood Poison others, that my liver and kidneys were affected, and it would end in Bright's disease, etc., until I was disgusted. A friend advised me to consult DR. G. F. THEEL, 1317 ARCH Street, Phila., and see what really was the matter, and if it was possible to regain health and strength. After a thorough examination he found that my depressed, weak and exhausted condition generally was the effect of early vice aggravated by wrong treatment, and that the constant loss of vital substance in my water and when asleep must be stopped at once, before the gloomy, tired, restless, nervous feeling would disappear, and that then I would gain strength and be fit for mental and physical labor and feel like a man. Four months of this treatment has restored me perfectly. I hope my experience will be a benefit to others who need the care of a Specialist.

As I preferred to be treated at the Doctor's house, I had the opportunity of conversing with more than 3,000 patients who called at his office. They all told me wonderful stories. How they got swindled by quacks and those claiming to possess the discovery of certain drugs to cure all effects of indiscretion They all said DR. THEEL is not alone a great and skillful physician, but a man who in reality loves to do good and takes a pride in every case he undertakes.

No name or address of any patient will be published unless they so desire. Strictest secrecy guaranteed to every patient.

A SOLDIERS LIFE.

O. M. M.

Some people think a soldiers life
Is quite a soft, soft thing,
They know not of his cares and strife,
They've not been "in the ring."
The new recruit so little knows
Of what he's going to tackle,
He thinks when he puts on the clothes,
That naught his fun will shackel.
Oh! What a "snap," he will declare
Much knowledge though he lacks,
He finds he gets his picnic, where,
The chicken got the axe.
Well first he's got to stand his drill,
For two hours, more or less,
While in his mind they will instill
Hold up your head and dress.
For two long weeks he goes through this
With muscles on a stretch,
Till he's full weary of the "biz,"
The poor unlucky wretch.
With bitterness they fill his cup
And never do desist.
Until the weary cry goes up,
Oh! why did I enlist!"
For five years sworn in, no less;
Oh! what was I about?"
And all my life long, I will bless,
The day that lets me out.
At length his drilling is complete
Then duty comes most hard,
When he must plod with weary feet.
For eight long hours on guard.
He walks his post with tearful eye
Each order must obey,
It's bad if he's caught napping, by
The "Officer of the day.
If he but takes a moment's rest
To ease his pains and woes,
He is caught up quick, put in arrest,
And to a cell he goes.
To suffer then behind the bars
Courtmartialed he will be,
And by a court which since the wars,
Has shown no leniency.
Six months will surely be his let,
'Tis vain to curse, or damn,
And all the pay he should have got,
Goes back to Uncle Sam.
And as it is with everything
That violates the laws,
Though you who are not in the ring,
May wonder at the cause.
It's disipline, the name it bears,
Attention, here I call,
A soldiers life then don't appear
A "picnic," after all,
And so this little yarn, I wind
And don't fall in this trap,
And take that notion from your mind
That a soldier has a snap.

The Milliner's ....Apprentice

A Garret Story That Ends Well And Wisely.

HE cheerful March sunshine streamed in at the window, where Pearl Playfair had just pinned up a piece of blue paper muslin to serve as a temporary curtain, and wrote its glittering autograph on the carpetless floor that Pearl had stayed up the night before to scrub neatly, so that Katie should not feel the room neglected.

The two chairs were wiped free from dust, the tiny stove shone with a newly-applied coat of blacking, and the chromo "Angelus," pinned on the wall over the wooden mantel, gave an air of refinement to the sloping-roofed apartment.

"Are you better to-day, Katie?"

"Oh, yes, Pearl, ever so much."

Katherine and Pearl Playfair were all alone in the world. Their father had been a hard-worked bank-clerk, who found it impossible to save a cent before death presented his account and bankrupted him at once.

Their few distant relatives had distinctly given them to understand that "blood was not thicker than water," and for more than a year these two brave young girls had fought their own battle with the world.

Katie was a "trimmer and finisher" in a fashionable dressmaking establishment. Pearl was errand girl and generally useful hand at Miss Thorburn's famous millinery.

"Next year," she said, brightly, "I can go into the show rooms and get a dollar a week more wages! And won't I be rich?"

But when Katie's dreadful cold deepened into a cough, and the doctor said she must not leave her room, Pearl found her twelve dollars a month sadly insufficient to meet all exigences.

The good doctor spoke to the kind little druggist on the corner, who put the medicines down to cost price; the baker's wife slipped in many an extra sponge-cake and Vienna roll among the frugal orders; the butcher saved his chiocest bits of meat for beef tea—for every one in the neighborhood know and sympathised with the Playfair girls.

But things had to be paid for nevertheless. And the tooth of poverty bites sharply. Pearl stood looking at Katie with questioning eyes.

"That is what you always say, Katie," said she. "And I know your cough was bad last night."

"Did I disturb you, dear?"

"It isn't that. But, oh, Kate, to see you growing paler and thinner every day—to know that you have to stay alone here so long—"

"But I don't stay alone, Pearl. Mrs. Nippert comes in often and little Allie Smith."

"And that isn't the worst of it, Katie. The coal is out, and I can't pay for any more until my Saturday night wages come in."

"It's lucks that the sun shines in so bright," said Katie, hopefully. "Never mind the coal, Pearl; I'll cuddle down in bed, with the blanket shawl over me, and I'm sure Mrs Nippert will make my cup of tea on her stove when noon comes. She's always so thoughtful!"

Pearl went to her work with a heavy heart. On the way she was joined by Joe Vail, the foreman of the box factory that supplied the patent receptacles in which Mrs. Fitwell's gowns were carried home to her customers, and in councils of war respecting splendid toilettes he had become acquainted with Katie.

He was a dark-haired, swarthy-complexioned young fellow, and his eyes sparkled as he saw Pearl Playfair.

"How's your sister, Pearl?" said he. "No better? Oh, I'm sorry to hear it! I say, my sister's come up from the old homestead to keep house for me this Sping, and she brought a barrel of jolly Spitzenberg apples and some home-made currant jelly. Would Katie try the jelly, do you think? Wouldn't it do her good? I'll send my sister around if——"

"Oh, thank you, Joe! This evening, please," said Pearl; and she secretly registered a vow that she would somewhere or somehow beg or borrow a peck of coals, so that these kind people should not find them absolutely fireless. "And Katie thought Joe Vail had entirely forgotten her," thought she. "As if any one could forget Katie."

Miss Thorburn was very cross when at last Pearl reach the store. Her best customer's carriage had been seen across the street at Mademoiselle Lavigny's rival store, and the new Paris fashion plates were delayed in their arrival more than a week.

"Late again, Pearl Playfair!" said she, sharply.

"It's only one minute past seven, Miss Thorburn," pleaded the girl.

"And I wish you distinctly to understand," snapped Miss Thorburn, who had been peering through the windows, "that I don't allow my young women to gallivant through the streets with young men on their way to and from the store. It isn't respectable, and—"

Pearl colored vividly.

"It's a friend of my sister," said she. "He only—"

Miss Thorburn glared at her.

"Oblige me, said she, "by remembering that I do not permit my young women to answer me back! Here's Miss Densel's bonnet. Take it at once to Number sixty Caravan square. She'll be furious because it wasn't sent last night."

Sixty Caravan square was a stately brown stone house, with vestibule doors of gorgeous stained glass and floor of mosaic marble, covered with rich Persian rugs.

Miss Densel was not in, but Paula and Florine, her younger sisters, ran to receive the hat.

"Audrey will be so angry because it didn't come in time for Mrs. Jay's musical breakfast!" cried Paula.

These two pretty young maids in their pink and blue cashmere tea gowns, their flowing gold hair and dainty, red-heeled slippers encircled with gold embroidery—how wistfully Pearl looked at them as she crept quietly away in her patched boots, her faded cloth jacket, which had come down to her from Katie, and poor little knitted Tam O'Shanter cap!

"How nice it must be to be rich," thought she.

"Let's have a look at the hat, Flo," said Paula. "Right here in the dining-room, where the bevelled mirror is. Audrey never lets us see her pretty things."

Florine opened the box.

"Oh, isn't it exquisite!" she cried. "All rose buds, with strings of pink faille, and the sweetest jewelled poniard stuck through the side! Are they real diamonds, Paula, or only Rhine-stones?"

"Rhine-stones, of course," said sage Paula. "Who ever heard of real diamonds with a thirty dollar bonnet? But isn't it a beauty? Let us try it ou, Flo. Oh, take care!"

For, in handing it across the table, Florine had dropped it. The effort to recover it resulted in overturning a tall flask of Bordeaux salad oil upon the rosebuds and pink faille.

Flo and Paula looked aghast at each other.

"Hush!" cried the former. "Some one is coming. Put it back into the box, Paula. Take it up to Audrey's room. She will think it was an accident. Oh how could you be so careless?"

"I wasn't careless," sputtered the indignant Paula. "It was your fault as much as it was mine. What will Audrey say?"

Two hours later the reception bonnet was brought back to Miss Thorburn by Audrey Densel herself in an olive plush-lined carriage, attended by a French maid, and Pearl Playfair was summoned at once.

She came, innocent and eager, only to be angrily dismissed from the establishment. In vain were here protestations and entreaties.

"If you didn't do it, stopping at some of your grocer and baker friends' places, who did?" said Miss Thorburn. "Do you suppose Miss Densel poured grease over her own reception hat? Silence, I say! Leave the house at once, and do not presume to ask for wages or reference from me, I consider that I am treating you with extreme leniency in not sending for a policeman.

Pearl went home feeling as if she were in a dream. Her situation was gone and without references how could she expect to get another? And who would find wood or fire for Katie?

The elder sister listened to Pearl's piteous tale with dismay, but she put the bravest possible front upon it.

"Don't sob so, Pearl," she soothed. "We shall not starve; something will happen to protect us, dear; don't be afraid. Who is that Mrs. Nippert is talking to outside?"

"It's me—Janie Vail," said a cheery, cordial voice, "with some apples and homemade jelly. My brother Joe says you are his friends. I may come in, mayn't I?"

And Janie entered, rosy and smiling, with a refreshing air of the country about her.

"Oh, yes," she said, nodding her head and glancing about the room, so cold, so cheerless, so neat, "nobody can expect to get well boxed up in the city like this! That good woman outside tells me that the doctor recommends country air. I think, Miss Playfair, that if you will visit my mother at the old farm for a month we won't know you when you come back. I hope you like the country. Joe does. It's Joe's hightest ambition to buy a nice farm of his own some time. As for that little girl there," nodding her head at Pearl, "she can come and stay with me while you are gone, if she don't want to lose her place at the bonnet store."

Pearl hung her head.

"I have no place now to lose. I was discharged to-day," she said.

Just then there was the sound of solid foot-steps on the stairs and hard breathing, as if the steep locomotion were a decided effort—and in trudged Miss Thorburn.

"Is this Pearl Playfair's place?" she panted. "Do people hereabouts live at the top of creation? Bless me, where's the fire? Is this sick girl your sister, Pearl? Why didn't you tell me you had a sick sister?"

Pearl shrank back, growing very pale.

"Have—have you come to arrest me?" she gasped.

"My dear, it's all right," said the obese milliner, beginning to recover her breath. "Miss Dinsel's two little sisters came right back in the carriage, crying as hard as ever they could. They had heard what hard luck you had, and they confessed—dear little things!—that it was all their fault. It seems they were looking at the bonnet in the dining-room—and a cut-glass flask of oil was somehow upset—and they were horribly frightened, and meant to keep it a secret; but when they heard Miss Densel's story, they couldn't bear to think that you were blamed, and owned up at once. So I've come all this way, my dear, to let you know. And you must come back at once, for it's our busiest time, and you can have Miss Dater's place in the show-room—Miss Dater's going to be married—at two dollars a week more. And you mustn't mind what I said to you when I was vexed, for an old woman's tongue can't always be held responsible. Ha, ha, ha!"

"Oh, I am so happy! so thankful!" gasped Pearl, while Miss Thorburn trotted around to the side of Katie's bed, to ask her a string of kind motherly questions, whose tread they understood better an hour later, when a basket of fruit arrived from the nearest grocery, a cold roast fowl from the restaurant, and a pail of oysters from the fishmonger.

"How good people are—how very good!" said Katie. "And I was just beginning to think that Heaven had forgotten us."

She was well enough, under the sunshine of all this kindly remembrance, to go to the Vail homestead within a veay few days.

Janie accompanied her thither, "just to settle her," and of course Joe had to go, too; while Pearl was taken into Miss Thorburn's own family during her sister's absence.

"I cant have her staying all alone by by herself." said Miss Thorburn. "She's a great deal too pretty; and what's the best of it, she don't even know it. I've taken a great fancy to that child. I shouldn't wonder if I some day adopt her."

But when Katie Playfair come back in May, with cheeks as pink as the mountain daisies themselves, and Miss Thorburn broached her ideas, the elder sister refused the offer, with many thanks.

"I couldn't spare Pearl," said she. "I—I am going to settle on a farm in Orange county—the great butter-making region, you know—and I want Pearl to enjoy the buttercups and the roses and the young lambs with me."

"Going to settle, eh?" said Miss Thorburn. "Oh, if that's the case, I make no further objection!"

"Yes," said Katie, blushing charmingly. "Mr. Vail has a contract as carpenter to a railway repair-shop there, and Pearl and I are to live always in the beautiful country."

"Well, my dear," said good Miss Thorburn, "I hope you'll be very happy. And mind, you're to take no thought about the wedding bonnet. I'm going to make you a present of one, all trimmed with white lilacs

CORNER OF SMILES.

Hundreds of people write: "It is impossible to describe the good Hood's Sarsaparilla has done me." It will be of equal good to you.

The only time a man is willing to stay at home and take care of the house is when his wife wants him to go to prayer-meeting with her.

She—If you married a girl in the hope that she would one day come into a fortune wouldn't you feel guilty over it!

He—Not if she got the fortune.

Jiggs—If you should be intoxicated and should meet your wife in the public street, what would you say?

Jaggs—Say? Suppose I should tell her she was drunk.

One Who Knows.

I have used Dr. Deane's Dyspepsia Pills for myself and family, and know they are an excellent cure for indigestion and constipation.

J. Calvin Smith, Greensboro, Md.

Minnie—There was the loveliest Russian Count at the seashore, and I did my best to get an introduction to him, but couldn't.

Mamie—Why not?

Minnie—There wasn't any one there who could pronounce his name.

"Sell you a nice alligator bag for $3," said the gentlemanly clerk to Uncle Isom, who was trying to buy a valise.

"What on airth do I want with a alligator bag?" asked the old man. "I ain't goin' to Floridy, I'm goin' to Chicago."

"Has the Congress of Religions at Chicago taken any action on anything or formed any permanent organization?"

"Oh, no."

"Well, what is it expected to do?"

"Why, it is simply there to talk things over."

"Oh, I see; just like the Senate, eh?"

Shattered Romance.

"Just one," said the lover, as he stood upon the stoop with his girl, "just one."

"Just one," said the mother, putting her head out of the bedroom window above; "well, I guess it ain't so late as that, but it's pretty near twelve and you'd better be going or her father will be down."

And the lover took his leave with a sad pain at his heart.

Louis' Good Luck.

"I noticed that when we were saying goodby at the railroad station you didn't let your Cousin Louis kiss you on the cheek."

"No, indeed, mamma."

"How did you manage to escape him? I know he is very fond of that kind of fun."

"I offered him my lips."

Summer Weakness.

And that tired feeling, loss of appetite and nervous prostration are driven away by Hood's Sarsaparilla, like mist before the morning sun. To realize the benefit of this great medicine, give it a trial and you will join the army of enthusiastic admirers of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Sure, efficient, easy—Hood's Pills. They should be in every traveller's grip and every family medicine chest. 25c. a box.

American Home.

The Press has the best possible organization to secure news from the most important sources, and with nearly 400 correspondents in Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, the State and near-at-house news is covered with a routine carefulness and attention to detail not even attempted by any other paper.

The Press has also the best of correspondents in all the great cities of the United States, as well as financial and railroads experts in Chicago and the West, who keep the paper more than abreast with events.

The columns of the Sunday Press are enriched by contributions from those whose names are written high in our lists of great authors, novelists, essayists, as well as from men of high rank in public life. The best authors know that their best audiences are the readers of the Daily, Weekly and Sunday Press.

In politics The Press knows no other master than the people, and the past year has seen, as has been seen before, the marked fact that it is subservient to no political boss. It has no political ambitions to foster, but looks after the interests of its readers, and delivers itself upon the issues of the day in a manner both frank and fearless, letting the facts speak for themselves and evading no issues, but meeting them all on the basis of fair play to all men at all times. Its pages know no distinctions and the rights of one class over another are neither recognized nor supported.

White City ....Weekly Letter

FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.

Items Of Interest From Jackson Park. Daily Attendance Increasing—Will Close Oct. 30th.

HIS has been another gala week of celebration. Iowa took two days to do the thing properly and tousands of Hawkeyes came to attend the exercises. A picturesque feature of the celebration was the giving away of carloads of golden rod by Iowans to visitor. A reception was held in the evening at the Iowa state building attended by Gov. Boies and his entire staff.

Director General Davis' orderes to stop the "barking" of Plaisance fakes was prolific of many humorous incidents, but the shouting has been stopped. At first the "barker" were inclined to rebel, also the concessionaries, but they were called down. One of the men thought that if his barkers couldn't talk outside their show they would inside and he started him at it, but a Columbian guard came along and took the orator to the station, where he was lectured and let go. After that lesson the news spread among the side-show men that it would not be safe to talk out loud, so they started in on a new tack. Mounting a chair outside they began to go through a series of gesticulations that would do well to a Dutch wind-mill in a gale. Arms were flung around, canes waved, umbrellas opened, but not a word was spoken. The crowd did not know what to make of it. The silence order was unknown to them. They gazed on the men and wondered if they were lunatics or wild men. Many comments were made, and the Columbian guards were pestered with questions. They became the advertises themselves, for every second man asked them what ailed the gesticulating individuals and, according to their instructions to answer all questions civilly, they had to tell. A Plaisance crowd soon accommodates itself to anything new, and the gesticulators became as successful as the deposed shouters.

A collection of musical instruments said to bespeak the origin and the gradual development of the modern musical instruments is encased in a long row of cabinets in a little room to the left of the south entrance to the government building. In this room and the one across the vestibule, neglected by most sightseers, are some of the rarest treasures of the Smithsonian institute. Trophies of science, literature and the arts are mingled together.

The little room on the left, beside the collection of instruments typifying the development of music, contains an exhibit illustrating the progress of the graphic arts from the fifteenth to the nineteenth century.

From a musical standpoint the babies of to-day rate with old and hoary Egyptian dervishes, who took delight in the rattle. The ancient Hindoos had rattles made of gourds, fantastically decorated with mythological Hindoo beings. The cultured Syrians made theirs of wood and so did the African tribes of the lower Congo. Gourds were used by the Mojaves and the other tribes of American Indians from the Haidas of British Columbia to the Mokis, who lived in the adobe pueblo of Tesuque in New Mexico. Some of the Soudanese made rattles of bones, and after awhile some of the tribes of Mexico learned from the Aztecs to make them of metals. And from this lesson the bell was evolved.

About the time of the Italian inquisition a widely known instrument of music was the capello, dubbed the "singing Johnny" by the English. This was a curious affair and was many stages advanced over the rattles of the uncivilized tribes of Indians and the ancient Hindoos. The first forms of the instruments in the clasification are the self-vibrating instruments. Under this head came with the rattles, drums, tambourines, cymbals, gongs, castanets and "bones." In the "rattling" epoch gongs added to the din. Rubber rattles, made for easy mastification by infant prodigies, are later day improvements on the old-time musical instruments. The Nubrons in their processions clanged iron gongs and sounded their triumph. The Hindoos in their religious rites used the mandria—cymbals in the form of metal cups. The oriental trophies in the exhibit were presented to the government by the Rajah Sourindo Mohun.

Along with the cymbals came the improvement of the rattles—strings bells. The cymbals of the Chinese were larger than those of the other orientals and made of thin sheets of brass. Castanets foundtheir way into Spain through the Moorish hosts and came from Syria. The Chinese evidently had a monopoly on gongs. The pang the ta-ting and the lo were different styles of the gong. The conch of Africa and a Maylayan gong made of metal and shaped like an hour glass with heads on both ends were seemingly fererunners of the drum. The lo looks like and is worked on the same principle as dinner-gong of a railway eating station. The baz of the oriental dervishes was probably the oldest form of a drum. Some of the African drums looked liked the barrel of an old-fashioned blunderbuss.

Chimes followed cymbals and came just before the drum and the tambourine. The yun-lo of China was a set of chimes, and made of nine metal pans set in a wooden frame and bent with a slender bamboo stick tipped with iron. The beautiful women of Georgia in the Caucasus played the daira, an early form of tambourine and the Chinese made their kous. Shoshone Indian, Siamese, Chinese, Malayan and all sorts of drums are played together near the center of the cabinet. Some are long and thin, and some are short and thick, and they all have heads made of the skins, of animals. The xylophone was long ago used by the Zulu tribes, and the mihambi was an instrument of the same same kind used by eastern African tribes. The Indians of Gautemala played the marimba centuries ago. This instrument is very much like that used by the Gautemalians at the fair. Wooden kegs and gourds of varying sizes were used in the manufacture of the marimba. The broadest keg and with the longest attached gourd sounded the lowest pitch, and to the highest pitch the size of the gourd and the width of the key gradually decreased.

Most of women who come to the fair are pretty well posted on American history, but not all of them are acquainted with the discoveries of the prehistoric races of mound-builders and cliff dwellers.

The other day a party emerged from the cliff-dwellers' exhibit, hot, tired and dusty and full of wrath.

"Why, it's a regular fraud!" exclaimed one; "the idea of paying 25 cents just to see a few old relics."

"Why, I expected to see some live cliff-dwellers," added another, "and they've got nothing but dead ones to show."

"Why, of course." assented a third; "I wanted to see how they lived and worked. All the rest of the villages show the people themselves, and they ought to have some live cliff-dwellers here. It isn't a good show at all."

There was no one around to inform the grumblers that a live cliff-dweller had not been seen since Columbus discovered America, and if one could be found he would be the greatest curiosity at the World's Fair.

THE DEMOCRAT PARTY.

As Seen Through Republican Glasses in the "Sunday Star."

The Democratic party is like the locust, "the seventeenth year." locust is its popular though unnecessary name. It does not appear very often in a century, and does not stay long before it splits up the back, goes to pieces literally and disappears. During its brief existence it makes a great noise, frightens women and children, puts its poisonous sting into a great many beautiful trees and despoils them of life and shade, and leaves its larvae all over the vegetable world as seed for future evil and mischief. The Democratic locust has poisoned the tree of confidence, blasted to a great degree the protecting foliage of the American system, and here and there it has struck a deathblow to American enterprises. But it is already split up the back, and it will soon crumble to pieces and pass away before four years are up, leaving only the seeds of anarchy, discontent and class hatred to break out in some other form a generation later.

In the Senate the majority is divided and under the half-hearted leadership of Voorhees the debate on the silver repeal drags its weary length along. The vote for repeal, it is said by good authority, is: Republicans, 27; Democrats, 19; against repeal: Democrats, 22; Republicans, 9; Populists, 3; Doubtful Republicans, 2; Democrats, 3. Total, 85. Three seats are vacant and Vice-president Stevenson only votes in case of a tie. He is against repeal. Three-fourths of the Republicans in the Senate are for repeal; one-fourth are against it. More than one-half the Democrats are opposed to repeal. In the House the locust is split too—over the repeal of the Federal Elections statutes. A faction of the Democratic locust, which believes in stealing everything, wants all those statutes repealed. Another faction, which thinks that only enough to insure success ought to be stolen, wants merely a part of those statutes repealed. And it is said, with good show of authority, that President Cleveland will veto any bill for the real of any portion of those statutes.

Whenever Senator Higgins speaks, he stirs up the animals. His accurate and caustic analysis of the election systems of the Southern states three years ago, brought out a fusilade along the whole Southern line, his knowledge of his subject being so full and exact that Senator Reagan was forced to admit that he was being instructed in respect to his own State, Texas. Again the other day the Senator, in his Silver speech, although he treated the subject on the highest possible grounds, entering into the philosophy of the question probably deeper than any of his associates had done this session, aroused a perfect battery of interuptions. His speech showed, as the Baltimore Sun said, an exact knowledge of the money systems of the world. A friend of the Senator, in speaking of the speech last week, stated that, immediately after the passage of the silver purchase act three years ago, Senator Higgins began an exhaustive study of the subject and that since then he had ransacked the whole world for money data; that he had kept himself as intimately informed concerning the financial policies, opinions and changes of the several countries of Europe, of Asia and of South America, as he had of his own country. It is to be hoped that Senator Higgins will have his speech published and distributed throughout the State.

KEEP SWEET AND CLEAN.

And Thus Keep at Bay Pestiferous Maladies.

The disagreeable odors that fill the air of Middletown are not chargeable to a canning factory nor to pig-pens, for neither of these odorous establishments are to be found here. But the horrible stench one finds in many quarters is an indication of bad sanitary conditions, that if not heeded, may cause a great deal of sickness.

At no time of the year is there greater need for care, than during the early autumn when vegetation is dying, and even the weather seems to invite disease. A fumigating station in our midst might not be a bad thing.

Blacking Shoes by Electricity.

An electric shoe-blacking machine is the latest candidate for public favor in New York City. You sit down before an upright box, with two holes in the side that makes it look like the old-time public stocks. Your feet are put into these holes, the operator turns on the current that works a set of brushes revolving on a belt and in a couple of minutes the process is over. Candor forces the conclusion that the result, however, is not up to the shining standard developed by the elbow-grease of the sunny South or sunny Italy.

Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures

Mrs. C. H. Titus

"Every Dose Helps Me

When I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and I think it the best medicine for the blood. My six-year-old boy had sores on his feet, caused by POISON IVY. They became so large and painful he could not wear his shoes. A week after I began giving him Hood's Sarsaparilla the sores began to heal up and disappear, and when he had taken two bottles he was entirely cured." MRS. C. H. TITUS, South Gibson, Pa.

HOOD'S PILLS are purely vegetable, and do not purge, pain or gripe. Sold by all druggists. 25c.

RARE OPPORTUNITIES.

Cheap-Rate Excursions to the World's Fair via the Pennsylvania R. R.

As the period of the existence of the World's Columbian Exposition draws to a close the demand grows stronger for the economical and satisfactory means of reaching Chicago provided heretofore by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. Recognizing the urgency of this popular need, that company has fixed a few additional dates on which excursions of the same character as the previous ones will be run-September 19th, 23d, 28th, October 2d, 11th, 17th, and 21st are the days selected from New York, Philadelphia, and points east of Pittsburg and Erie and north of York.

The special trains will be composed of the standard coaches for which the Pennsylvania Railroad Company is noted, and the arrival in Chicago at an early hour the following afternoon obviously gives ample opportunity for the securing of accommodations at that place.

The trains will leave New York 9.00 a. m., Jersey City 9:13, Newark 9:25, Elizabeth 9:32 New Brunswick 9:53, Trenton 10:23, Philadelphia 11:30, Frazier 12:09 p. m., Downingtown 12:22, Parks 12:41, Coatsville 1:02, Dancaster 1:29, Conewago 1:57, Harrisburg 3:00 p. m., Lewistown Junction 4:30, Tyrone 6:00, Altoona 7:00, and Pittsburg 10:00 p. m. The excursion rate, good only on the special train and valid for return within ten days, $20 from New York, $18.25 from Philadelphia, and proportionately low from other stations. Return tickets are good for ten days.

These trains will be run on fast schedule, and will be provided with all modern conveniences with the exception of Pullman cars.

Many expressions of complete satisfactton have been made by people who have availed themselves of this excellent opportunity of visiting the greatest and grandest exhibition the world has ever seen.

SALE SET ASIDE.

Inadequacy of Price was the Ground of the Action.

In superior court Thursday morning ex-Attorney-General John Biggs asked the court to set aside a sheriff's sale on the ground of inadequacy of price and the failure to notify the owner of the property of the sale. The property was that of Mary E. Stroup, at Delaware City. It was sold under a forclosure on August 29th, the purchase money being $11.72. The mortgage was for $900. The property comprised four houses in Delaware City. The purchaser was Colonel S. A. Macallister.

Mr. Biggs called several prominent citizens of Delaware City who testified that the property was assessed at $2800, and a fair value would be $1500. The property might bring $2000. The court decided that the sale ought to be set aside and granted the application.

THE ANNEX ASSURED.

The Enlarged Shirt Factory Will Employ 50 More Hands.

The proposition to enlarge the Shirt Factory has been accepted by our Improvement Company, and the new building is virtually pledged.

The committee appointed to solicit stock has been very successful, and only about 30 of the required number of shares remain to be taken. The enlarged plant will give employment to at least 50 more operatives, and will furnish means of support for many families that would otherwise find the "times" very hard.

The Shirt Factory is a blessing and increased capacity will increase its blessings.

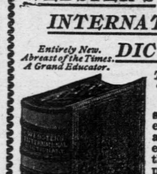
WEBSTER'S INTERNATIONAL DICTIONARY

Entirely New. Abreast of the Times. A Grand Educator.



The successor of the "Unabridged."

Ten years were spent revising, 100 editors employed, and over $300,000 expended before the first copy was printed.

Everybody should own this Dictionary. It answers quickly and correctly the questions so constantly arising concerning the history, spelling, pronunciation, and meaning of words.

A Library in Itself. It also gives in a form convenient for ready reference the facts often wanted concerning eminent persons, ancient and modern; noted fictitious persons and places; the countries, cities, towns, and natural features of the globe; translation of foreign quotations, words, phrases, and proverbs; etc., etc., etc.

This Work is Invaluable in the household, and to the teacher, scholar, professional man, and self-educator.

A saving of three cents per day for a year will provide more than enough money to purchase a copy of the International. Can you afford to be without it?
